

Technology has revolutionized the modern world by transforming communication, education, and business.

It allows people to connect instantly, learn globally, and innovate across industries.

However, excessive dependence on digital tools may reduce creativity and social interaction.

Hence, technology should be used wisely to enhance productivity and human well-being.